Mamata targets Centre for farm laws, PM Cares Fund

WEST BENGAL CHIEF minister Mamata Banerjee on Tuesday hit out at the Centre for forcibly implementing the new farm laws and accused it taking up schemes without consulting the states or providing financial support for projects. She sought to know where the money of the Prime Minister's Citizen Assistance and Relief in Emergency Situations (PM CARES) fund is and wondered why no audit was conducted in it. Banerjee said the country was going through a "suffocating phase" and slammed BJP for demanding audits into the direct cash transfer scheme for Cyclone Amphan affected families. The BJP wants the Bengal government to implement its schemes without giving any financial assistance, the CM said, asserting that her government would not work as per the whims and fancies of the NDA government at the Centre.

"Why should we implement the central projects, which are already there in the state? The Centre is taking funds from the state governments and then lecturing us. "They (the Centre) don't pay fully for the central projects and yet want those to be implemented. The developmental projects of the state government are fully funded by itself," Banerjee, a vocal critic of the BJP said. Keeping up her attack, the TMC supreme said as per the projects the Centre will pay 40% and the state 60%. "But they (the Centre) will take full credit, we will not allow it."

Joe Biden faces a balancing act in choosing top aides with business ties

THE NEW YORK TIMES Washington, December 1 FIVE YEARS AGO, Jeffrey D. Zients was the head of the Obama administration's National Economic Council...

prevent financial advisers from taking advantage of retirees. He won praise from progressives for fending off fierce resistance from Wall Street and for fighting for consumer protections. These days, Zients is a co-chairman of President-elect Joseph R. Biden Jr.'s transition team who is being watched warily by members of Democratic Party's left wing. Progressive advocacy groups such as the Revolving Door Project and Justice Democrats, concerned that he would defend corporate America if given a top economic policy job in the Biden administration, pushed to keep him out of such a role. They view his recent work running an investment fund - Cranemere - and sitting on the board of Facebook as a detriment. The pre-emptive resistance to Zients (pronounced ZYE-ents) from the left is the latest indication of how the Democratic Party has shifted in the dozen years since former President Barack Obama took office amid the financial crisis. Now, business and finance experience can turn otherwise qualified White House candidates into pariahs for progressives. Zients, 54, has emerged as an important power centre in the Biden transition team and was mentioned as a possible candidate to once again lead the National Economic Council or head the Office of Management and Budget, a role he held in an acting capacity during the Obama administration.

Tech mogul in biggest tax case facing dementia, lawyers say

BLOOMBERG December 1

ROBERT BROCKMAN, THE software executive charged in the largest-ever tax case against a US individual, is facing progressive dementia that will render him unable to help in his defence, according to a legal filing citing his doctors.

Brockman, 79, was indicted on tax evasion and money laundering charges that accused him of using a complex trust structure in the Caribbean to hide $2 billion in income over two decades. His lawyers want his case moved from San Francisco, where he was indicted on October 1, to Houston, where he lives and his doctors treat him. In a filing late Monday, physician James L. Pool said Brockman has symptoms consistent with Parkinson's disease, parkinsonism, Lewy body dementia, or some combination of them. The diagnosis can only be "totally confirmed" with an autopsy, but each results in rigid muscles, slow movements and tremors, according to Pool, a pharmacology professor at the Baylor College of Medicine in Houston. "All are characterised by progressive dementia, and in Brockman's case, the medical reports confirm cognitive impairment, which includes, but is not limited to, both short and long-term memory loss," according to Pool's declaration. Brockman's condition renders his "long-term memory inaccessible and defective," according to the filing. "For these reasons, I concur with the medical position that Brockman cannot assist his attorneys in his defence." US District Judge William Alsup will hold a hearing Tuesday to consider Brockman's request to move his case to Houston. Brockman's lawyers have also said they'll seek a competency hearing for their client. The Justice Department can present its own medical experts to refute Brockman's claims. Alsup had directed defence lawyers to file their papers on his competency by December 8. Prosecutors have said they oppose a venue change. A spokesman for the Justice Department didn't immediately respond to an email requesting comment on the Monday filing by Brockman's legal team. Brockman, the former chief executive officer of Reynolds & Reynolds, a maker of software for auto dealers, has pleaded not guilty. He was the first investor two decades ago in billionaire Robert Smith's initial private equity fund, eventually putting up $1 billion. Smith, the chief executive officer of Vista Equity Partners, avoided prosecution after agreeing to cooperate against Brockman. Smith admitted in a non-prosecution agreement that he evaded $43 million in taxes from 2005 through 2014. Both men hid money from the Internal Revenue Service by using Swiss bank accounts and secretive Caribbean trust structures initially set up by the same Houston lawyer, according to prosecutors. Another witness against Brockman is Evatt Tamine, an Australian lawyer who worked with him in Bermuda. The filing on Monday included an October 2018 immunity agreement in which Tamine promised to cooperate against Brockman and Smith. Prosecutors are expected to oppose the claim by Brockman's lawyers that he isn't competent to stand trial, and the legal burden for establishing that is high. Last month, Geneva prosecutors froze over $1 billion that Brockman held in Swiss bank accounts.
